

I have had my xm radio for over almost 2 months now and can tell that it is far better than regular. I don't care if I ever have a normal radio again. My xm radio is commercial free, now if you take the time a time how much actual air time a normal radio station plays music then how much it is commercials you will understand. It does not surprise me that big business doesn't like this. It hurts them, more people get these radios daily, less people are listening to them so that is money out of their pocket. Then even better what probably even makes them madder is the fact they can't control it or even compete with it. I am sorry but leave my xm radio alone, and tell the one's complaining to stop crying and grow up. To xm radio I say thank you so much, I travel more than most people and it works great everywhere I go. One idea can you add the history channel?
